After near thirty hours, the watchers over his remains were surprised and horrified by seeing the glass casing of the coffin broken open and the appearance of the corpse's head thrust through the aperture. The colonel spoke to know what the devil they were trying to do?" Our Indefatigable Sheriff Pursues an Old Offender, Arrests and Lodges Him in Jail.

Some would say that we deserve no credit for doing our duty-that it is our bounden duty to discharge, faithfully, whatever trust is committed us to do. Human imperfections may account for the fact that so many $1 50 of us fail, while so few succeed. Our atten tion has been drawn to this subject forcibly by the last exploit of our worthy sheriff, Cap tain C. L. Anderson, who lately returned from the far western portion of Texas, having in charge the murderer, William Seaver, who Mered Dougherty in Elmwood cemeters in 1869. Many of our people were shocked at that time in hearing that the sacred grounds of Elmwood had been polluted by the murderer's touch, and that the blood of an nnecent man had been poured out upon so dedicated to our dead. The murderer fled from justice, evading detection in another State, conscious that he was free, and that his whereabonts would not be found out. Our officials at that time did all they could in a vain search for him. Years passed on, and Captain Anderson, who then was first elected sheriff, received information that Seaver had been in Mississippi, under the name of M'Donough, but when these tidings reached him the bird had flown to other parts. He traced him to Alabama, and thence to Texas, where the pursuit was still continued. Seaver crossed the great State of Texas settled in Lampasas county, which mountainous region he hoped and felt that he was secure, little dreaming that justice was still pursuing him. Through the assistance of another agency he was spotted, and his retreat discovered. Captain Anderson made the trip in person, undergoing much fatigue, and exposed to many dangers, and, after seven long years, his efforts were rewarded, and he has brought the murderer back, and placed him in the jail of Shelb county to answer for his crime. We think our sheriff deserves the highest praise, not only for discharging this duty, but for his duty. He is the sheriff for the people and not for any party, and we all should endeavor to aid him in his duties, which are so responsible, and which requires so much fidel ty and courage on his part.

The virtues of the Pomeroyal are the theme of every good housewife, who delight in saying that peace has reigned in every household since their introduction in the compilation of excellent rolls, biscuits, pancakes, etc. The popularity of the Pomeroyal has made it such a necessity that every well regulated retail grocer has it on sale.
